37th International Conference

LANGUAGE AND MIGRATIONS

15th – 17th June 2023

Osijek (Croatia)

Second Call

Human history has witnessed various kinds of migration, caused, by and large, by geographical, political, economic, or demographic factors.

For the last few years there has thus been talk of the eighth emigration wave of Croatian citizens, predominately to the more developed EU countries such as Germany. The migration of African and Asian population to EU countries put its mark on the year 2015, and the war conflict in the Ukraine has set off significant migrations of a number of inhabitants from the Ukraine to different parts of Europe, including Croatia.

Migrations make a considerable impact on all aspects of life in the target countries. But what happens to language in the context of migrations? What happens to the linguistic behaviour of individuals involved in such movements on the one hand, and to the domestic population on the other? What happens to language teaching, multilingualism, language policy?

This year's annual conference of the Croatian Applied Linguistics Society aims to explore the relationship between migration and language, with a particular eye towards applied linguistics in the context of contemporary migration phenomena, whereby migration is seen as encompassing both the movement of large populations, as well as daily migrations of inhabitants from home to work or school. Migration is also understood in a metaphorical sense.

The participants of the annual international Conference of the Croatian Applied Linguistics Society are invited to address, study or analyse this year's topic of Language and migrations from some of the following perspectives and fields of study:

- Second language acquisition
- First language acquisition
- Multilingualism
- Discourse analysis
- Glotodidactics
- Translation
- Lexicology and lexicography
- Phraseology
- Stylistics
- Language policy
- Forensic linguistics

- Language disorders
- Psycholinguistics
- Cognitive Grammar
- Metaphor, metonymy, conceptual integration
- Rhetoric
- (Public) communication
- Language of digital communication channels
- Information technologies
- Code-switching
- Methodology of scientific research

Participants are also invited to expand on the above topics and areas by pursuing other topically similar issues and study areas.

Application details

Presenters

Presentations should not exceed 20 minutes. Each presentation will be followed by a 5-minute discussion. The submitted abstract should include the title of the presentation (up to 150 characters), abstract (300 to 350 words) and 3-5 key words. The title, abstract and key words need to be submitted in the language of presentation and an additional conference language.

The abstract should clearly specify the research problem, the theoretical framework and a clear link between previous studies and the research problem presented in the paper. The hypothesis and research methodology need to be clearly presented, together with the research results and potential scientific and/or professional contribution of the work. We kindly ask you to limit the number of references in the abstract to four. Abstracts should be proofread. All abstracts will undergo an anonymous review process. All accepted abstracts will be published in the Book of Abstracts and accessible to all conference participants on CALS official web pages.

Presenters may submit a maximum of two paper proposals (as presenters or co-presenters).

Abstracts should be emailed to hdpl.conference@gmail.com.

Following the review procedure, the authors will be notified on the acceptance or rejection of the abstract.
